TMA Opens Virtual Attendance Option for its 2022 OPSTech

August 22, 2022, McLean, VA – Beginning today, security industry professionals have the option to register to take part virtually in The Monitoring Association’s (TMA) 2022 OPSTech educational sessions that are being delivered in-person Sept. 11-16, 2022 in Charlotte, NC. The full, five-day program features operations, technology, and video tracks. Registrants attending the meeting in-person will also have the opportunity to take part in roundtable discussions and networking events, as well as a private tour of CPI Security’s new, state-of-the-art monitoring center.

“There is no question that face-to-face attendance is preferable and offers significantly higher value for our attendees, but we are sensitive to those who may not be able to travel to Charlotte for budget, scheduling, or other issues,” stated TMA President Morgan Hertel. “This meeting is distinctly designed as an open exchange forum to encourage attendees to engage one-on-one with their peers. Impromptu discussions around key issues and challenges they face in the day-to-day performance of their responsibilities in a monitoring center often lead to the discovery of viable new strategies and solutions. That is the core benefit of attending OPSTech in – person.”
